LARGE CROWD ATTENDS FLAG PRESENTATION

Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, Presents American Flag to the New High School, Grand Knight Patrick T. Murphy Making the Presentation Speech—Address by Chaplain Chidwick.

The exercises attending the presentation of a large American flag to the new high school by Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, were held this morning on the new high school grounds before a large and attentive audience, and the exercises were marked by the delivery of several fine addresses, notable among which was the principal address of the morning delivered by the Rev. John P. Chidwick, D.D., who was chaplain of the Maine at the time it was blown up in Havana harbor.

The exercises drew a large crowd who began to assemble shortly after 10 o'clock. A large stand had been erected on the grounds from which the addresses were delivered, and the committee in charge of the event deserve great credit for the success of the occasion.

After several selections by the Colonial City Band the address of welcome was delivered by former Assemblyman Andrew J. Cook, who presided. He said that he was pleased at the large attendance and that the Knights of Columbus, always loyal to our country, were more than pleased of the opportunity that had been afforded them of presenting the handsome new high school with an American flag and in a few graceful was attacked. The patriot army under General George Clinton was unable to reach here in time to repel the invaders but arrived on the Key-kout on Golden Hill while the village was in flames. There were 1,800 of Vaughn's troops but few patriots left at home to oppose them. First at the heights in Poughkeepsie earth-works were thrown up and cannon trained on the enemy for a time. The defenders saw that they could not hold the position and retired this way after spiking the guns. The red coats followed the retreating patriots up what is now Hasbrouck avenue, to Delaware avenue, thus to this spot where we are now. Here a skirmish took place, the patriots firing on the invaders from the woods on each side of the highway. The well drilled regulars passed rapidly along to the upper end of the village and there burned every building in the town excepting the "Van Steenburgh" house on Wall street, near Dr. Sahler's Sanitarium, where it stands to this day. Several hundred houses and barns were ruthlessly destroyed. The invaders returned to the river under a harassing fire from the Colonists and embarked immediately, having lost heavily.

General Clinton was furious at this act of hatred on defenseless women and children. General Gates wrote a stinging letter to General Vaughn, the commander of the invading force. The men left at home immediately coming and again our forefathers demonstrated their patriotism. The 20th and 120th regiments reflected great honor upon Kingston and vicinity in the rebellion and helped preserve the union. General Sharpe, Colonel Pratt, Colonel Westbrook, Colonel Tappen, Captain Everett, Captain Snyder and many others all upheld our President, Abraham Lincoln.

Again in 1898 Kingston produced its quota of troops and President McKinley was upheld, still demonstrating that Kingston was loyal and patriotic.

Therefore, my friends, after reviewing the acts of the citizens of our beautiful city during the different critical periods of our National history, all must conclude that Kingston, one of the oldest cities in America still stands at the fore in patriotism, valor and love for the parochial school system in order that the youth might grow up in the faith and be better moral men and citizens of our country. The heroes who had given their lives that our country might be free should not be forgotten in these days and the flag should wave from every school house and steeple in the country carrying with it its blessed message of freedom and equality to all. Father Chidwick spoke for over an hour and held the close attention of all.

GERMANS TORPEDO ALLAN LINER

Ship Sank at 6:47 This Morning. Having Been Torpedoed by a Submarine Saturday Night—No Americans Lost—Eight of Crew Lost.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Sept. 6.—The Allan liner Hesperian, torpedoed without warning by a German submarine on Saturday night one hundred miles southwest of Fastnet, Ireland, sank at 6:47 a. m. today.

United States Consul Frost, from Queenstown, has telegraphed the American embassy that the assistant purser of the Hesperian, the only ship's officer then landed, made an affidavit that the liner was torpedoed without warning.

The Hesperian carried 350 passengers and a crew of 300. Two of the crew were Americans and are safe. No Americans were among the passengers, all of whom were landed safely at Queenstown. According to Consul Frost about eight of the crew were lost. About twenty of the passengers were injured and many of them suffered seriously from exposure.

It was 8:20 p. m. when the Hesperian was struck. It is said that only one man aboard saw the submarine. He was the look-out, and promptly notified the captain. So far as known, nobody saw the projectile that struck the ship and for that reason it was deemed possible but not probable that the Hesperian struck a mine.

Many of the thirty first cabin and 117 second cabin passengers were attending a concert in the saloon and the force of the shock hurled them from their chairs.

Among the survivors brought into Queenstown great praise was given to the officers and crew of the steamer. Their coolness, precision and rapid work were given the credit or the absence of loss of life among the passengers.

Immediately after she was struck Captain Main sent out the "S. O. S." and in a remarkably short time several vessels from the vicinity of Queenstown surrounded the Hesperian, while warships hunted the submarine. The rescue ships quickly picked up the passengers, floating about in the lifeboats.

The important point about the Hesperian, on which will hinge the probable attitude of the United States, is that the liner is said to have carried one gun, a 4.7 rifle, mounted on her stern. Germany might declare, therefore, that the steamship was armed, but throughout the war the United States government has allowed ships with guns to be used as auxiliaries, not as armed vessels.

The two Americans included in the crew are F. I. Dallas, of Buffalo, and McAllister of Grand Rapids. Both were landed yesterday and told the American consul they were the only Americans on the ship.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Until all the facts regarding the torpedoing of the Allan liner Hesperian, outward bound from Liverpool for Montreal, are obtained an official statement will maintain an open attitude. Differing entirely from the cases of the Lusitania or the Arabic in that there was no loss of American lives, officials admit that the attack on the liner, if proven to have been by a German submarine, will raise the issue whether Germany's promise to spare liners was made in good faith. And on the latter decision will depend whether the United States shall go ahead and close up the differences at present existing between the two countries or whether another serious crisis is to result. Officials are hopeful that the Hesperian incident will present such a character, when all facts are known, as to be very easy of adjustment. Incidentally some of these are inclined to believe that the submarine which sank the Arabic may yet prove to be the one that attacked the Hesperian, despite the generally accepted belief in naval circles here and in Germany that that particular craft was lost.

Secretary Lansing has asked Consul Frost at Liverpool and Ambassador Page at London for information that will clear up the following points:

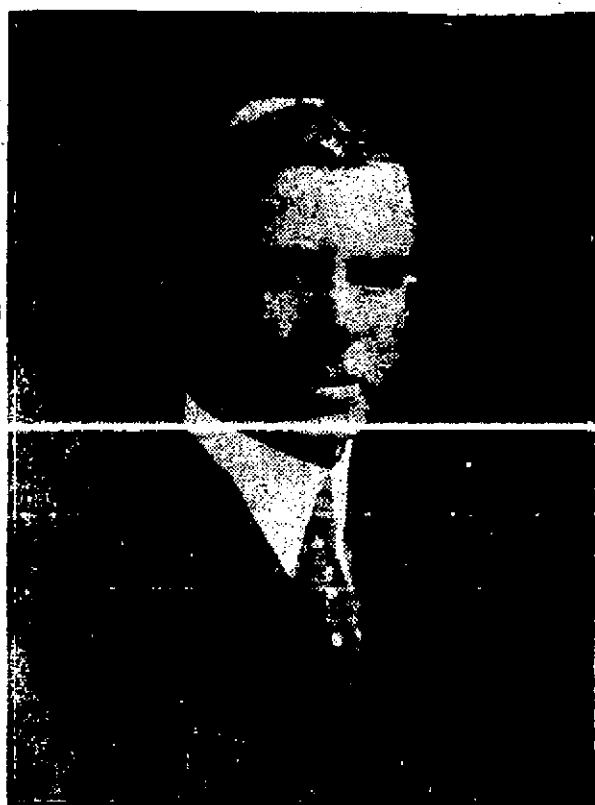

Was the Hesperian a liner, or a military transport which had been pressed into passenger service for the trip between Liverpool and Montreal only and intended to bring back Canadian troops?

Was the fact that the Hesperian was armed generally known and was the gun mounted aft in such position that it easily could be seen from a submarine?

Was the Hesperian signalled to stop and did she either try to escape, or was she manoeuvred so that her gun could be trained on the submarine?

Was the fact that Canadian troops were on the liner even though they were "not organized" generally known before it sailed from Liverpool?

It was believed at the state department that these questions can be settled easily. Secretary Lansing made it very plain that until complete information regarding the entire circumstances surrounding the attack on the Allan liner is at hand he will not discuss the case. At the same time it was evident from the attitude of all the higher officials of the administration that they are gravely concerned over the attack. Early official information had led the state department to believe that the Hesperian had been chased for some time before being torpedoed. But Consul Frost, in his message, made no mention of any such information reaching him and he was asked to make specific inquiries on this point and wire the information at once.

GRAND KNIGHT PATRICK T. MURPHY.

Who presented the flag to the new high school on behalf of Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, this morning.

words he introduced Grand Knight Patrick T. Murphy, who made the presentation speech.

Mr. Murphy called attention to the glorious history of our country and said that he was indeed grateful in behalf of the local council with this opportunity of the order showing its unswerving patriotism and love of country by presenting the board of education and the new high school with the emblem of liberty.

Chairman Cook then introduced President William C. DeWitt, of the board of education, who he said needed no introduction. President DeWitt spoke as follows:

President DeWitt's Address.

In accepting the flag President DeWitt of the board of education said: Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In behalf of the board of education and the city of Kingston I desire to express our thanks for this beautiful emblem of our country, the American flag.

One of the most impressive sights I have ever witnessed is the daily salute to the flag in the public schools of the United States. The flag is on the walls in Kingston in each assembly room of our schools and after the scriptures and the Lord's prayer the salute to the flag is given.

"I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the country for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Let us go back to the early times of the Colonists and consider how Kingston appeared in 1776, when this nation was born and this flag came into being. Although Kingston (as it was first known) was settled as far back as 1652, there were few buildings erected during the century and a quarter previous to 1776. By the time of the revolution, when the Colonists broke the bonds which held them to the mother country, there were several hundred houses and barns in the upper part of the town along the Esopus creek and low lands. There was a fort and a number of buildings on the Strand along the Rondout creek.

Our forefathers here fairly seethed with patriotism and gave such great support to the cause that Kingston became an object for the hatred of General Vaughn and his troops.

On October 17, 1777, Kingston commenced the reconstruction of the village, the walls of many dwellings having remained standing. These were rebuilt and stand today about our city, as strong as ever, monuments to the self reliance and determination of our forefathers.

In November 1782 Kingston was honored by a visit from General Washington. On his arrival in town with his staff, he was met by the trustees and a large body of citizens.

Henry J. Sleight, president of the board, made the address of welcome, to which Washington replied in these words:

"Your polite and friendly reception of me proves your sincerity. While I view with indignation the marks of a wanton and cruel enemy, I perceive with the highest satisfaction that the heavy calamity which befell this flourishing settlement seems but to have added to the patriotic spirit of its inhabitants, and that a new town is fast rising out of its ashes. That you and your worthy constituents may long enjoy that freedom for which you have so nobly contended, is the sincere wish of your most obedient, humble servant, George Washington."

The constiory of the Old Dutch Church united heartily in this greeting of the hero, and also presented him with an appropriate address, the response to which was in his own hand writing and is now a cherished memento occupying a niche in the vestibule of the present church structure.

You perceive that the residents of this vicinity, among them the Livingstone-George and James Clinton, Morris, Young and others, were compatriots of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Lafayette, Adams, Jay, Hamilton, Putnam, being associated with them at the Continental Congress or on fields of battle or in the quiet of their homes.

Many of you are not aware that it took an Ulster county man to lead the Boston Tea Party and pour the objectionable tea into Boston harbor. It is an historical fact, nevertheless, and Dr. Thomas Young was the guilty man.

Now then if from these facts we have established our right to greet the flag, we must move along to the war of 1812 and the Civil War. At both these crises troops were forth-this proud emblem of our beloved country.

The main address of the morning was then delivered by the Rev. John P. Chidwick, D. D., who was introduced by Chairman Cook who called attention to the fact that Father Chidwick was one of the best known priests in this country and that he had served his flag and country in the navy and was chaplain of the Maine at the time it was blown up. At the present time Father Chidwick is president of Danwood Seminary, one of the best known Catholic institutions of learning in the country.

Father Chidwick was a forceful and eloquent speaker. In glowing words that drew forth tremendous applause he traced the glorious history of our country and flag from the dark days of the revolution down to the present time. Our flag is truly heaven blessed and heaven born, said he.

Touching the question of parochial schools he said that the parochial school was not an opponent of the public school system and that the Catholic Church was heartily in favor of educating the children of the nation. Long before the public school system had been inaugurated the Catholic Church had instituted

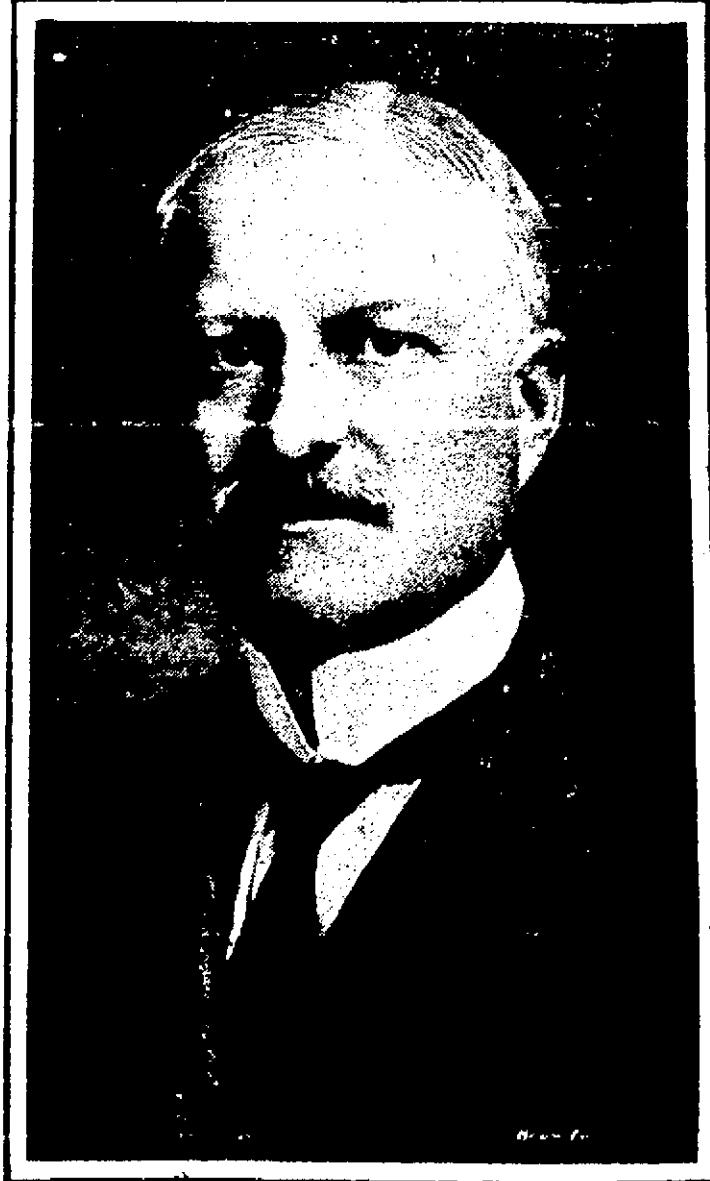

G. N. Oliver. The question of whether a new school should be built was raised when a number of the school district wrote to Albany stating the school was not fit for a hog pen. An inspector from the state board of education visited the school and the state board in its report to the school trustees stated if certain repairs were made it would not have to be rebuilt. The school will open for the fall season on Tuesday in charge of Miss Ida DuBois of Sundown. Since the school has been repaired it is now in good shape for the season. This school was first built in 1832.

UNDERSEA CRAFT.

The Strength and Weakness of the Modern Submarine.

The chief advantages claimed for the submarine include comparative invulnerability when submerged, coupled with immunity from gunfire while in that condition. It carries a weapon against which no adequate protection has been found. It presents a small and difficult target when itself assailed by torpedo attack. Other elements in its favor are low cost, handiness, seaworthiness in rough weather, comparative immunity from floating mines as well as those laid in very deep water and the possibilities of use as a mine layer.

On the other hand, the submarine is handicapped by many disadvantages and limitations. Its radius of action is small. Its speed is low, about 14 knots on the surface and 10 knots submerged. The periscope is useless during darkness, and to operate at that time the vessels must therefore come to the surface, thus rendering themselves very vulnerable to the attacks of surface craft. Since the submarine's hull is damaged by gunfire, ramming or otherwise, it is no longer able to submerge, and its usefulness as a war vessel is ended until repairs can be made.

When flying at an elevation of less than 1,000 feet air craft can usually see submarines operating near the surface. —World's Work.

SERPENT OF LERNAEA.

Scientific Basis For the Myth of the Many Headed Monster.

A noted surgeon suggests that the story of the many headed serpent of Lerna, if a myth, is yet a myth with an altogether scientific foundation. The monster was credited with anywhere from nine to 100 heads, and, according to the legend, if one was cut off another immediately grew in its place. Some averred that each head was replaced by two.

The origin of this serpent, as well as its acts and its final destruction by Hercules, are entirely fanciful, of course, but some recent juggling in biological laboratories seems to show that the ancients may have got their conceptions of its form and being from what they had actually seen. Professor T. H. Morgan, for instance, has cut off the anterior end of an earthworm and excised a piece of the central nerve cord. This left the anterior nerve ends and a head grew from each.

Dr. Van Dyne recently went much further in the case of a marine planarian, actually developing six heads upon the creature, each with its own eyes and apparently normal in its functions. —Exchange.

Novelists' Troubles.

George Meredith said that the most difficult thing to write in fiction was dialogue. But there is surely one thing at least as difficult—a thing scarcely less done that a mere reader might think it to be more difficult than dialogue—and that is the telling what happened.

A UNIQUE CLUBHOUSE.

Maintained at Portsmouth For Enlisted Men of the Navy.

Portsmouth, N. H., has what is claimed to be the only clubhouse in the country for the enlisted men of the navy. There are 1,000 C. A. buildings in Newport, Brooklyn, Norfolk and Philadelphia, but the Portsmouth clubhouse, known as the Reading Room, is something quite different, and its unique ideas and the extent of its success have made it famous wherever a ship of the American navy is stationed.

There are no dues at this club and no red tape. The only requirement is that one must be an enlisted man of the navy. He then becomes a full fledged member of the club, with the privilege of bowling on the latest improved alleys for 14 cents a string or 30 cents an hour, or of playing pool or billiards at the same rate, or having all the privileges of an up to date gymnasium, with shower baths, soap, towels, etc., for 50 cents a month; or of "sitting in" at a game of cards, checkers or chess at any of the numerous tables in the game and reading room for nothing; or of reading, free, the news from home in the thirty papers from all sections of the country; or of passing the time in perusing, without cost, what he likes in thirty magazines, scientific and popular; or taking his pick in the mahogany furnished library of 1,500 volumes of books without cost or trouble.

All this is in addition to a big dance hall, where he can hornpipe to his heart's content. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MAKING COFFEE.

There Are a Thousand Ways, but Only One Right Way, Says an Expert.

"The right way of a thousand ways to make coffee," says an expert, "is to take the fresh product and grind it very fine, but not pulverized. Then place it in an earthen jar in proportions of a heaping tablespoonful for every cupful required. After this pour on boiling, bubbling water, let it stand five minutes and then stir with a spoon. After five more minutes, pour off carefully, and it will then possess all of the good that should be in coffee. It is then without the bitter which is incidental to boiling and without the metal taste which is incidental to its cooking with tin. The whole secret lies in the water—it must be bubbling, boiling because the oil will not fuse with water until it is bubbling, boiling."

Here is where the cook most always fails 999 times out of 1,000. When the vapor is first observed coming from the spout of the pot the temperature of the water is about 180 degrees F., while at the bubbling point it should register 212. And always remember that in making coffee it is best always to let the siphonifier deal out the coffee, and in making tea let the miser deal out the tea."

The expert was asked why so many people who write for a living drink bad coffee. He simply replied that the secret in the making was the bubbling in the water. —New York World.

Great Men Born in Wartime.

It is pointed out that during the first years of the last century, from 1800 or 1810 to 1815, when all Europe was suffering from the Napoleonic wars, she gave birth to almost every great man who was to guide her better destinies for 100 years to come. In that terrible period of travail Britain gave birth to Disraeli, Gladstone, Cobden, Bright, Browning, Tennyson, Shaftesbury and many others. Italy had Cavour, Mazzini, Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel, the four men who secured the liberty and unity of the Italian kingdom. America gave us Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry Ward Beecher and most glorious of all, Abraham Lincoln. —British Weekly.

Spanish Silkworms.

Four hundred years ago the silks of Seville, then the most famous in the world, were exported to all countries. For Spain was the first nation of western Europe to take up silk culture. The climate of Spain is excellent for this industry, and fine silkworms, such as were employed when silk cultivation was at its height, are available in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, near Granada. This worm has a life of fifty days, during the first thirty of which it grows to about 8,500 times its original weight. Ninety-six thousand small eggs of the silkworm weigh one ounce.

WORKS OUT PLAN FOR BIG NAVAL RESERVE.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The plan for expending the U. S. Naval Reserve into a body of 50,000 men, which the secretary of the navy is contemplating putting into effect was worked out by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The plan is a part of the program of the administration to prepare the government for a time when it may be called upon to wage a war. The Roosevelt plan provides that the proposed reserve shall be made up of retired officers and enlisted men of the navy, of the men identified with the coast guard and the lighthouse services of the federal government, the harbor police in the various port cities and those identified with the various state naval training schools. It also contemplates voluntary enlistment by citizens, and provides measures whereby merchant vessels, private yachts and power boats may be impressed into service in time of need with the naval militia.

This particular reserve, for the present, at least, will be distinct and separate from the state militia organizations.

NEAT BEDS.

You have often visited a home where, when you entered a bedroom, you were directly struck by the neat appearance of the beds and you at once wondered how anyone could be such a perfect housekeeper as your hostess.

Did you ask her how she managed to keep up such a perfect home? If you did she undoubtedly told you that it was because she had secured a perfectly efficient chambermaid through the use of Want Ads.

That is where the really perfect ones are obtained—in the Want Columns.

UNDERSEA CRAFT.

The Strength and the Weakness of the Modern Submarine.

The chief advantages claimed for the submarine include comparative invisibility when submerged, equipped with immunity from gunfire while in that condition. It carries a weapon against which no adequate protection has been found. It presents a small and difficult target when itself assailed by torpedo attack. Other elements in its favor are low cost, handiness, seaworthiness in rough weather, comparative immunity from floating mines as well as those laid in very deep water and the possibilities of use as a mine layer.

On the other hand, the submarine is handicapped by many disadvantages and limitations. Its radius of action is small. Its speed is low, about 14 knots on the surface and 10 knots submerged. The periscope is useless during darkness, and to operate at that time the vessels must therefore come to the surface, thus rendering themselves very vulnerable to the attacks of surface craft. The submarine's hull is damaged by gunfire, ramming or otherwise, it is no longer able to submerge, and its usefulness as a war vessel is ended until repairs can be made.

When diving at an elevation of less than 1,000 feet, a craft can usually see submarines operating near the surface.—World's Work

SERPENT OF LERNAEA.

Scientific Basis For the Myth of the Many Headed Monster.

A noted surgeon suggests that the story of the many headed serpent of Lerna, if a myth, is yet a myth with an altogether scientific foundation. The monster was credited with anywhere from nine to 100 heads, and, according to the legend, if one was cut off another immediately grew in its place. Some averred that each head was replaced by two.

The origin of this serpent, as well as its acts and its final destruction by Hercules, are entirely fanciful, of course, but some recent juggling in biological laboratories seems to show that the ancients may have got their conceptions of its form and being from what they had actually seen. Professor T. H. Morgan, for instance, has cut off the anterior end of an earthworm and excited a piece of the central nerve cord. This left the anterior nerve ends, and a head grew from each.

Dr. Van Dyne recently went much further in the case of a marine planarian, actually developing six heads upon the creature, each with its own eyes and apparently normal in its functions.—Exchange

A UNIQUE CLUBHOUSE.

Maintained at Portsmouth For Enlisted Men of the Navy.

Portsmouth, N. H., has what is claimed to be the only clubhouse in the country for the enlisted men of the navy. There are Y. M. C. A. buildings in Newport, Brooklyn, Norfolk and Philadelphia, but the Portsmouth clubhouse, known as the Reading Room, is something quite different, and its unique ideas and the extent of its success have made it famous wherever a ship of the American navy is stationed.

There are no dues at this club and no red tape. The only requirement is that one must be an enlisted man of the navy. He then becomes a full-fledged member of the club with the privilege of bowling on the latest improved alleys for 14 cents a string or 20 cents an hour, or of playing pool or billiards at the same rate, or having all the privileges of an up-to-date gymnasium with shower baths, soap, towels, etc., for 50 cents a month, or of "sitting in" at a game of cards, checkers or chess at any of the numerous tables in the game and reading room for nothing, or of reading, free, the news from home in the thirty papers from all sections of the country; or of passing the time in perusing, without cost, what he likes in thirty magazines, scientific and popular; or taking his pick in the mahogany furnished library of 1,500 volumes of books without cost or trouble.

All this is in addition to a big dance hall, where he can hornpipe to his heart's content.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MAKING COFFEE.

There Are a Thousand Ways, but Only One Right Way, Says an Expert.

"The right way of a thousand ways to make coffee," says an expert, "is to take the fresh product and grind it very fine, but not pulverized. Then place it in an earthen jar in proportions of a heaping tablespoonful for every cupful required. After this pour on boiling, bubbling water, let it stand five minutes and then stir with a spoon. After five more minutes pour off carefully, and it will then possess all of the good that should be in coffee. It is then without the bitter which is incidental to boiling and without the metal taste which is incidental to its contact with the pot. The whole secret lies in the water—it must be bubbling, boiling because the oil will not fuse with water until it is bubbling, boiling.

"Here is where the cook most always fails 300 times out of 1,000. When the vapor is first observed coming from the spout of the pot the temperature of the water is about 180 degrees F., while at the bubbling point it should register 212. And always remember that in making coffee it is best always to let the spendthrift deal out the coffee, and in making tea let the miser deal out the tea."

The expert was asked why so many people who write for a living drink bad coffee. He sharply replied that the secret in the making was the bubbling in the water.—New York World.

Great Men Born in Wartime.

It is pointed out that during the first years of the last century from 1800 or 1810 to 1815, when all Europe was suffering from the Napoleonic wars, she gave birth to almost every great man who was to guide her better destinies for 100 years to come. In that terrible period of travail Britain gave birth to Disraeli, Gladstone, Cobden, Bright, Browning, Tennison, Shaftesbury and many others. Italy had Carour, Mazzini, Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel, the four men who secured the liberty and unity of the Italian kingdom. America gave us Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry Ward Beecher and most glorious of all, Abraham Lincoln.—British Weekly.

Spanish Silkworms.

Four hundred years ago the silks of Seville, then the most famous in the world, were exported to all countries. For Spain was the first nation of western Europe to take up silk culture. The climate of Spain is excellent for this industry and fine silkworms, such as were employed when silk cultivation was at its height, are available in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, near Granada. This worm has a life of fifty days, during the first thirty of which it grows to about 2,500 times its original weight. Ninety-six thousand small eggs of the silkworm weigh one ounce.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 6, 1915

An experiment which has been tried over and over again in the world's history is now under way in Mexico City. Food is scarce and its price has risen under the operation of the law of supply and demand, but the Government has repealed this natural law and has replaced it with an official schedule of prices. Merchants are being arrested by the score for charging more than the specified rates, for skimping on weight and for declaring falsely that they are out of the goods asked for. The Roman Emperor Diocletian and his successor Julian, both of whom were bigger men than old Carranza, tried out this policy sixteen hundred years ago. In England it was tried by Edward III and Edward IV. As late as 1777 and 1778 it was tried by our own State of New York as well as by Massachusetts, Rhode Island and other States. We are indebted for this compilation of kindred incidents to a speech made by Charles H. Betts in the Constitutional Convention. In each and every case the result was disastrous. Sometimes these regulative laws have been repealed by the power that made them, and sometimes by riot. Yet there remain plenty of people who still have faith in political quack medicines. Even many who are free from this delusion are quite sure of the efficacy of that other nostrum—a minimum wage law.

If Governor Whitman is familiar with the Bible he must be thinking of the advice of the Preacher. "Be not righteous overmuch." Why shouldst thou destroy thyself? When he heard that the Constitutional Convention had adopted a proposition to raise the Governor's salary from $10,000 to $20,000 a year, to take effect next year, he reflected upon the fact that he had been elected under a Constitution providing that the salary of no official shall be increased or diminished during his term, and therefore asked that the new rate should not go into effect until 1917. His request was granted and in making the amendment the revisers inadvertently made the section read in such a way as to deprive him of any salary at all next year. Fortunately, the blunder has been discovered in time. We admire the Governor's high sense of honor, but are under the impression that he would have been morally justified in letting matters take their course.

Austria-Hungary has all along been so amenable to the will of Germany that surprise and a measure of incredulity are aroused by a report published in the New York Times to the effect that that country was responsible for Germany's professed chance of front on submarine warfare. This report makes the assertion that the dual empire has now two million of its subjects, mostly Hungarians, in America, and that they send home to their relatives $150,000,000 annually. But for this money, according to the story, famine would be rife in a great part of Galicia, Bukovina and Transylvania, and it is as a result of hostilities these remittances should be discontinued. The Government would have to institute a gigantic and expensive system of poor relief. It is easy to understand the official desire to avoid this calamity and the motive for demanding that Germany discontinue practices which were a failure from a military standpoint and were on the point of producing an intolerable situation. It has always been known that money was flowing from this country in large amounts to support the poor of Europe, but few people have suspected that one country alone was setting one hundred and fifty million dollars a year. If this has happened in times of peace, what may we expect after the war?

An American genius as yet unnamed has invented a new process of dyestuff making which will revolutionize the industry and make us independent of Germany, according to Dr. Thomas H. Norton, Government agent. It is believed that the method can be kept secret and therefore it has been decided not to patent it. Anybody who seriously believes that anything can be kept secret if it is to the interest of a large number of wealthy and capable people to find it out is sadly lacking in experience, and wiser counsels may prevail. Furthermore, patents run out eventually, and if the process is what it is claimed to be it will be but a question of time when it will be used by our foreign competitors. The only way to make the dyestuff industry permanent in this country is to protect our manufacturers by a tariff duty. Dr. Norton also asserts that a method has been found to produce potash from which we have been dependent on Germany, out of deposits of kelp on the Pacific coast, which is good news to users of fertilizers, since the war has run up the price of potash from $38 to $269 a ton. We are unable to speak with knowledge of this matter, but it is highly probable that a little protection would be a good thing here also. The tariff issue, which has been "settled" so often, is as important now as ever.

A STRANGE SENTENCE.

(By Our Woman Editor)

Out in Oklahoma lives a woman who has the misfortune to have acquired in police circles a record of persistent drunkenness. It seems that once too often she fell from the grace of sobriety, and the Police Justice before whom she appeared, mindful of her troublesome and troublesome past, imposed the remarkable sentence of a million dollar fine and ninety-nine years in jail.

Explaining the severity of his conception of a fitting punishment for her continued offense against society, he said he did it because he did not want her ever to be at large again. And he insists that in cutting short her unbridled career in the outside world he is quite within his rights and has nothing to fear.

A pretty strenuous penalty, is it not, for an all-too-common crime? And one is wondering if the fact that the offender was a woman did not harden the heart of the judge, and make him look through very intolerant eyes. Because Oklahoma, in spite of its newness and its progressive ideas, must harbor within its borders many and many a man who has accumulated an unsavory record for his fondness for drink, and all that goes with it, and is known to the authorities as an out-and-out delinquent, hurting himself and society.

Will the judge proceed to rather him in and all of his kind? For it seems sort of strange and discriminating to make a solitary woman pay the price. Not that she stands alone, among women, the only drunkard of all, but that here always is a very lonesome figure among the many men sink down to that sorry level. Pathetic, for the sake of the woman, but no greater object for the might of the law than are the hapless men who offend in similar way. At least, she should not be.

And, as a matter of fact, one believes that as Oklahoma wakes up to the enormity of the sentence, many protests will drift in and the multiplied years and dollars will be lessened, to conform to the punishments usually dealt out. And the judge himself may look upon the crime and the criminal in a different light.

Perhaps one should not deem it within her right or her province to attempt to look into the mind or through the eyes of the judge and guess what influenced his action. But one does. And, looking, one sees the same old double standard that has worked so much of hardship and suffering, yet so much of blessing through all the years it has lived.

One fancies the judge, discriminating and hard as he was, had no intent to be unduly rough in his sentence because of the sex of the offender. He simply lived up to the impression of the asses—that vice of city sort grows blacker, more baneful in its effect, when it fastens its clutch upon one woman than when it reaches out to gather in hundreds of victims among men. And, thinking that way, he works out an exaggerated punishment, rather than let the woman roam at large, an offense to all who behold.

And while one fervently sympathizes with him in his natural repugnance at the spectacle of a woman degraded through drink and believes that it terribly shocks the world's truest ideals, one also believes that the judicial mind should earnestly try to be fair.

And there is one thing made rather impressive by this unusual sentence and the attitude of mind it betrays—

One believes that the masculine half of the world left more or less free to drift as it will, never yet subjected to the depths of a woman's mind—the higher type of woman, if you like—and her shadings of thought as she pitifully views the easy drunkenness rampant in the world.

Men say, and so do we women ourselves, that it is repulsive, degrading, ugly in the extreme, to see a woman forget herself, through drink, and throw every ideal away, not once, but habitually. And it is. But one wishes that every man who has reached the level of being classed among the persistent offenders might see himself through the eyes of the very women who care for him most, or even of those whose esteem he regards. For one believes that when drunkenness reaches home—the very word is an offense in the ears—is it not—the sense of repulsion, degradation and ugliness takes no measures, asks not at all whether it is a man or a woman who offends.

It may not have been impressed upon the consciousness of the judge or of that of the world that it is an awful thing, a hideous thing, for men, habitually, or every now and then, to let drink steal away their brains and every ounce of their strength. But women who view them from the intimate angle of the home or the colder one of the world, have had it burned in upon their minds and hearts that life would be easier and far more beautiful if every transgressor of the drinking variety, without any regard to sex, had been dealt with in the same summary fashion as was the woman in Oklahoma whom the judge did not want to be at large any longer.

And one is not finding fault with his severity toward her, except as it marks an injustice, rather, one is hoping the whole world may open its eyes to the fact that it has made a grievous mistake in asking the sex of a criminal and fitting the punishment accordingly.

One never loses sight of the fact that, in a way, women have gained, if they have suffered, too, but this mighty war waging over the lands today, if nothing else, has spread the reason that men cannot drink and be forceful too. And perhaps the little incident in Oklahoma, with its discrimination and all, may make the truth sink in.

AQUEDUCT TAX IN COURT AGAIN

The Gardiner and Shawangunk tax matters, involving the assessment of the New York city aqueduct line through those towns, were heard again by Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court, when application was made by William McMe Spier, counsel for the city of New York, for orders striking the assessments for 1911, 1913 and 1914 from the assessment rolls of the two towns.

The application was based on the decision of the court of appeals in the 1910 case, in which the court of appeals decided that the assessments for that year were illegal and invalid and directed that they be stricken from the assessment rolls. In order striking the assessment for the year 1913 from the assessment rolls was granted by Judge Hasbrouck at the special term of the supreme court held in June, and Mr. Spier asked that similar orders be granted for the years 1911, 1913 and 1914 inasmuch as all the papers in both cases for all five years were precisely alike except as to dates and names of assessors which of necessity must be different for the different years. It had been agreed that the proceedings for all the years should be dependent on the determination by the court of appeals of the 1910 proceeding.

Augustus H. Van Buren, counsel for the town assessors of Gardiner and Shawangunk, in opposing the motion, said there was no stipulation on the record that the other proceedings were to be determined by the 1910 proceeding, and the only statement he had made, and which he still made in open court, was that he would be precluded by that decision as to assessment of the aqueduct structure. He wished to deny that the assessors of the two towns had assessed the aqueduct structure. The only question contained in the case which had gone to the court of appeals, said Mr. Van Buren, was whether the assessors had a right to assess the aqueduct structure and the court of appeals had decided that they did not have such a right. The question of whether the assessors had in fact assessed the aqueduct structure had not been decided at all, said Mr. Van Buren and inasmuch as the remaining proceedings were properly before referees who had been appointed by the court, the court had no jurisdiction of the cases at the present time because the orders appointing the referees had not been revoked. At some time, said Mr. Van Buren, he intended to offer his proof as to these facts before the referees, and he thought Mr. Spier should proceed with the cases before the referees.

Mr. Van Buren said that none of the returns made by the assessors to the writs of certiorari taken out by the city stated that they had assessed the aqueduct structure; he had drawn the returns himself and was careful in drawing them as to what statements they contained. All that he had ever said in regard to the proceedings for the other years was that he was perfectly willing to have the trial of the other cases held until the court of appeals could determine whether the assessors had a right to assess the aqueduct structure. Now he intended to offer his proof that the aqueduct structure had not been assessed.

In reply to Mr. Van Buren Mr. Spier said that if the aqueduct structure had not been assessed by the Gardiner and Shawangunk assessors, he could not understand why the court of appeals should have directed the aqueduct assessment stricken from the roll in connection with a decision limited, as claimed by Mr. Van Buren to the question of whether the aqueduct structure could be assessed. If the court of appeals had been passing only on an academic question of law, why should the court have directed the assessment to be stricken from the roll unless there was an illegal assessment. The proceedings, the answers, the returns and

All other papers were alike in all cases, and all were on file. If there had been no question of the kind he stated raised in the other cases, why had they been held pending the determination of the 1910 proceedings by the court of appeals.

Mr. Van Buren said the cases must be heard before the proper tribunal, which was the referees to whom the matters had been referred.

Judge Hasbrouck said the proceedings were separate and individual, and in order to show him that they had been held pending the determination of the proceedings which had been carried to the court of appeals, there must be something in the record to that effect. He therefore denied the city's motion, with leave to renew it at the next special term on additional papers.

Breaking a Mass of Iron.

A simple way of breaking a mass of iron is explained by an engineer. In a mass two feet square and four feet long he bored a perpendicular hole one inch in diameter and between three and four inches deep. This he filled with water and closed with an accurately fitting iron bolt. One heavy blow on this bolt broke the mass into two pieces.

ASHOKAN AWARDS IN SPECIAL TERM

Motions to confirm awards made by Ashokan Business Damage Commission No. 2 in July were heard before Judge Hasbrouck at Saturday's special term of the supreme court at the court house.

The motions were made by Senator Walton, counsel for William F.
Stewart, Lawrence Joyce, as administrator; William J. Green, Catharine Bonesteel, Millard H. Davis,
George H. Windrum, Cora J. Boice,
Judy C. North and Benjamin Giles; and by Arthur A. Brown, as counsel for Anna McEvoy Dent, Henry Mc-Evoy, Tina B. Lasher Estate and Jerome Gulnack and Jennie Gulnack.
The awards were from $1 to $1-445. In eight of the cases, counsel for the claimants asked for costs.
There was no opposition by Mr.
Speer, counsel for the city of New York, to confirmation of the awards or for costs, and the awards were confirmed and costs were granted.

Mr. Brown moved for confirmation the award by Business Damage Commission No. 3 to Martha Young for $1,656.50. The commission found that her net income per year was $339.50. Mr. Speer, in opposing the confirmation, said the figures submitted by the commission showed that it had adopted a six months' period, during which time the boarding house was open, in estimating the receipts, but had adopted a ten weeks' period in estimating the expenses.

Judge Hasbrouck said the determination of the receipts and disbursements was a matter for the commission, and unless the commissioners had adopted an erroneous theory in awarding damages, he would confirm the report.

Other Ashokan Cases.

In the matter of Ashokan Reservoir Parcel No. 515, owned by Millard H. Davis, the claim for which was first tried before Commission
No. 10 and re-tried before the commission composed of Messrs. Ernst, Shea and Merritt, Senator Walton moved that the claimant be allowed $104 witness fees, no bills of costs having been filed with the commission when it made its award. There was no opposition to the application, which was granted.

In the matter of Parcel No. 957, Senator Walton applied for leave to draw moneys deposited with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, which was granted without opposition.

In the matter of Parcel No. 981, Augustus H. Van Buren applied for leave to correct the report of commissioners, from which the name of one of the owners had been omitted through inadvertence in typewriting.
The application was granted without opposition.

Melinda Depuy Wants Separation.

Melinda Depuy of Wallkill brought suit before Justice Morschauser in special term at Newburgh on Saturday for a separation. She charges non-support and claims she has received nothing from her husband for fifteen years. The husband, Aaron S. Depuy, lives in Sullivan county and there are three children. Earle H.
Houghtaling appeared for the wife and Anson J. Fowler for Depuy. The court ordered alimony of $3 per week and $25 counsel fee and set the case down for trial on September 18.

Fell From a Barn.

On Friday Dennis Sheehan, son of Patrick Sheehan of Ruby, fell from the roof of a barn to the ground, a distance of thirty feet, and broke both arms besides sustaining a number of bruises and lacerations about the face and body. Owing to his condition Dr. Calvin Emerick was unable to reduce the fractures until afternoon when he was assisted by Miss Edna C. Low, a trained nurse.

QUESTION OF BEER.

Supreme Court Asked to Decide as to Its Quality.

How long a time is required for a customer to ascertain whether beer is good or bad is one of the questions raised in a suit brought by the Pennsylvania Central Brewing Company of Scranton, Pa., against Morris C.
Kremmerer, formerly of Sullivan county but now living in Pennsylvania, which was heard by Judge Hasbrouck on Saturday.

Between January 11 and June 18 of this year, the brewing company supplied Kremmerer with beer amounting to $900, on which the only credit was the return of two empty kegs. One June 19, Kremmerer gave the brewing company a check for $377, which was deposited in the bank by the brewing company but was returned as no good. When the brewing company brought suit, Kremmerer admitted receiving the beer and giving the check but set up as a defense that the beer was of poor quality and injured his trade.

"Why did he give the check?"
asked Judge Hasbrouck of Kremmerer's counsel.

"To get more beer, I suppose," replied the attorney.

The matter came before the court on a motion by the plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings. Judge Hasbrouck reserved decision. John T.
Cahill appeared for Carpenter & Rosch of Liberty, counsel for the brewing company and in favor of the motion; Bruce Winner of Liberty appeared for Kremmerer and opposed.

Strong of Rhinebeck was acting deputy grand master. Lafayette Commandery, Knights Templar, of Hudson, acted as escort for the grand lodge officers. The grand master and staff were entertained at lunch by Mrs. Johnston Livingston DePuyser at her home in Tivoli. During the lifetime Colonel DePuyser was warden of Monumental Lodge of Madalin. ## MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Some persons are unable to understand why "Rube" Marquard should have balked at going to the Toronto team in the International League. "Rube" claimed that such an act would put him in the minors but the persons referred to above are of the opinion that "Rube" has been pitching for a minor league team all season.

Colin Bell, of Australia, who is not much larger than a ten cent bucket of ale, announces that he wants to fight Jess Willard. Some fellows certainly will go to a lot of extremes—and take big chances—to get their names into the public prints.

Watching for the phantasmal Phillies to plop has caused an epidemic of eye strain in seven National League cities.

Can an umpire make a correct decision on a play that is being made while he (the umpire) is sliding along over the turf on the point of his sneezing apparatus? Umpire Stockdale, of the Toner circuit says it can be done; New York fans take the negative.

During a recent game in Gotham one of the visiting players started to steal third. Stockdale moved over toward third but stumbled, fell and slid on his nose just as the play was being made.

"Safe," yelled Stockdale, rising to his feet, after the play was made.

"Robber, robber," yelled the Gothamites.

Pat Moran and Hughie Jennings seem to be the only two people who are seriously trying to frustrate the Boston's efforts to monopolize the world series games.

Arrie Mucks, of the University of Wisconsin, the new national discus throwing champion, was the subject of laughter the first time he ever picked up a weight preparatory to heaving it.

It happened several years ago during some high school workouts. The athletic supervisors had rounded up all the likely looking weight heavers—but they passed up Mucks. He seemed too fat and ungainly. But Mucks trailed along to the practice field.

The supervisors figured that if they could find a man who could heave the discus 100 feet it would strengthen the school's track and field team chances in a coming meet.

The first boy who hurled the weight scored 80 feet. The next made it 86. A third sent it 90 feet, and the seventh, by a superb effort, sent it 97 feet.

"Can I have a try at this?" asked Mucks.

The directors looked at him, snickered inwardly, and then to humor him, gave consent.

Mucks picked up the discus but he didn't know anything about making the turn. He floundered a while, got a few false starts, and then whirled around, put every ounce of his weight into the throw—and let go.

The spectators after they had recovered from their surprise over the mighty heave of the young giant, got the tape-line, busy and discovered that Mucks had hurled the saucer 134 feet.

Will 1915 mark the last appearance of the "old guard"? Tommy Leach seems to be "all in." Mathewson's arm is gone; Wagner isn't hitting and has slowed up afield in the past two months, and Lajoie is dropping lower each week in the race for batting honors.

Fred Clarke, boss of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is so mad at Fred Snodgrass that he may never speak to him again. The reason:—

When Snodgrass was let out by the Giants Clarke wanted Snodgrass to sign with the Pirates. The Braves wanted Snodgrass to sign with them. And just at that very moment both the Pirates and Braves were about even—Stephen in the National League fight.

Well, the next day the Pirates lost and the Braves grabbed a doubleheader, which resulted in the Braves moving nearer to the top and the Pirates nearer to the bottom of the National League heap. Whereupon, the shrewd Mr. Snodgrass chose the wiser course by signing up with the team whose pennant chances looked the better.

And now Fred Clarke is terribly angry because he claims Snodgrass promised him that he wouldn't sign with anyone until he gave Clarke another chance to talk business.

But what's business compared to a chance to share in the world series spoils.

SCHALK PLAYS "JOKE" ON "NEMO" LEIBOLD

RAY SCHALK

NEMO LEIBOLD

Ray Schalk is tickled because Nemo Leibold is with the White Sox. The two players were on the Milwaukee Club of the American Association some years ago. They roomed together and were the closest of pals. They went around together, knew the same crowd of girls in Milwaukee and wore each other's neckties.

As time went on, Schalk was purchased by the White Sox and Leibold went to the Cleveland Naps. This did not interfere with their friendship, however. Except during the progress of a ball game, they still were chums.

One day, with Jim Scott pitching, the White Sox got into a jam. With two out, the Naps had the bases full. Nemo Leibold was sent up to bat in the pinch by Manager Birmingham. Schalk decided to play a little joke on his former "roomie" and, incidentally, get Scott out of a hole if possible. Leibold sauntered to the plate, swung his bat and waited for Scott to pitch. Schalk gave the signal for a grove ball and then asked Nemo if he had received a letter from Mary recently. The Nap player turned half around. "No, Ray; she hasn't written in weeks. Wonder what's the matter?"

Scott had shot a ball through and the umpire called "Strike one!" "That's funny," replied Schalk. "I thought she wrote at least once a week."

"Guess she's too busy to write," said Leibold, glancing around again.

Another ball shot across.

"Strike two!" yelled the umpire.

The two coaches on the lines frantically tried to give Leibold the signal. They couldn't understand why he stood there as if in a trance.

"Well, I heard from Helen," exclaimed Schalk. "She's going to Michigan on a two weeks' trip."

"Gee, that's great," answered Leibold, keeping his bat on his shoulder.

"She's certainly a dandy girl."

"You bet she is," grinned Schalk as the third strike whizzed across.

"Batter out!" snapped the umpire, and Nemo walked to the bench.

DIAMOND NOTES.

The Fed league will not enter Boston next year.

Hank O'Day denies that he was a jinx to the Cubs.

Babe Adams is pitching winning ball for the Pirates.

Frank Schulte is walloping the ball with real vigor these days.

The return to form of King Cole has given Bill Donovan a lot of real joy.

During the season, the Washington club is going to be hard to stop," said J. Ed Grillo.

Larry Chappell is not going to jump to the Feds, in spite of the big money offered him.

Anyhow, Johnny Evers has solved the problem of how to get the fans out to the ball park.

The Athletics are making plenty of hits these days, but they aren't much of a scoring organization.

It looks as if the Pirates are going to play a bigger part than a bowl of mush in the pennant competition this season.

Manager Rowland thinks he has the best utility outfielder in the American league in the person of Little Nemo Leibold.

Dave Robertson of the Giants has developed into a corking good hitter. He is as fast as Ty Cobb between home and first.

We wonder what has become of the lucky penny that Capt. Cushman Rice gave to George Stallings last season. Is it still on the job?

Left Fielder Wheat of the Brooklyn team is credited with knowing as much about playing for batters as any man in the big league.

John Hummel probably is one of the oldest players in the National league in point of service, but he has not outlived his usefulness.

Frank Chance, Jawn Evers and Hank O'Day, former Cub managers, ought to hold a consolation party and entertain Reg Bresnahan.

Ralph ("Cy") Perkins of Gloucester, Mass., who is a catcher with the Raleigh team, in the North Carolina league, has been sold to Connie Mack.

The players of the National league are complaining of the gag rule the league has put on them this year. Every time one of them opens his mouth he is fined.

Connie Mack says that he will not sell his stock in the Athletics. He has his mind set upon developing another winner, and the chances are good for his doing so.

BRAINS NECESSARY IN GAME

Oscar Stange, Detroit Backstop, Says Catching Demands Great Amount of Mental Ability.

Few fans and not so many players realize the important part that brains play in the modern game of baseball. Oscar Stange, the first-class Detroit catcher, once said: "Catching demands one-third physical ability and two-thirds mental work."

In making this statement he did not overestimate the mental part of it. A good arm and a good eye never made a wonderful ball player. He must have these ingredients in his make-up.

Oscar Stange.

In order to succeed, but they must be commanded by his brain. The only reason in the world that Ty Cobb is the greatest ball player and the biggest drawing card in the game today is that he has more brains than the average player and uses them in his work. Cobb is always studying the opposing pitcher and catcher and figuring out some way to outwit them on the bases.

Famous Home Run Drives.

Those famous home run drives made into the stands at the Polo grounds soon may be no more, at least for American league games, for Jacob Juppert of the Yankees has suggested that they should be counted only as two-base hits. The distance from the plate permits them legally being called homers, but 225 feet is far too short for the heavy swatters of these days.

$12,000 Beauty Released.

Pitcher "Honolulu John" Williams, once valued at $12,000 by Sacramento and later drafted by the Detroit club at the standard draft fee, only to fall and be turned back, was released outright and unconditionally by Salt Lake City after refusing to accept a transfer to Omaha.

Abandon Pacific Coast Trip.

Connie Mack and Frank Bancroft, the two veteran baseball men who headed the all-star teams in the expedition to the Pacific coast last fall, have decided to abandon the trip this year.

Half Done.

"I can't remember the words of that new song," said the girl.

"That makes it easier," replied her father. "Now all you've got to do to make home happy is to forget the tune."—Washington Star.

J. P. MORGAN BOARDING HIS YACHT.

FIRST PICTURE OF J. P. MORGAN SINCE THE SHOOTING.

This picture, made aboard J. P. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, is the first of the noted financier taken since he was shot by Holt, the maniac, who later committed suicide in the Mineola, L. I., jail. The picture was secured under peculiar circumstances. It is known that Mr. Morgan is avowed to posing for news photographers, but a staff cameraman of the International News Service was assigned to get a picture of Mr. Morgan. He went down to East Island, Mr. Morgan's summer home, in a motor boat and while approaching the landing saw Mr. Morgan about to board his yacht. The photographer asked the financier to pose and met with a refusal. At that instant Mr. Morgan's Panama hat blew into the water. The photographer steered towards it, picked it up and returned it to Mr. Morgan, who smilingly said, "Young man, you deserve something for that. I shall pose for you if you wish." The photographer was taken aboard the yacht and Mr. Morgan posed for the picture.
